

Vera Krekanova, Ph.D. serves as the chief strategy and research officer at the Allegheny Conference on Community Development. As a member of the leadership team, she plays an integral role in formulating and implementing economic development strategies and interventions. Vera is responsible for developing, overseeing, and assessing the regional economic development agenda while providing strategic insights to the board and executive leadership. In addition, she is an adjunct faculty member at the University of Pittsburgh School of Public and International Affairs.

Vera has over 20 years of experience spanning healthcare, social services, workforce, and economic development across the United States, Europe, and South America. She holds a BA from Charles University in Prague, an MS from Robert Morris University, and a PhD in Social and Comparative Analysis in Public Policy from the University of Pittsburgh.